Vanick Renews Quince Centre Lease

Vanick Group has renewed its lease at Quince Centre, 6555 Quince Road, where the company is headquartered.

The technological solutions firm added about 600 square feet of office space, bringing its total occupancy at Quince Centre to 3,100 square feet. Vanick Group worked directly with the property's owner and management firm, In-Rel Management Inc., on the renewal and expansion.

Vanick Group implemented the expansion in an effort to increase internal productivity to fulfill the needs of its growing relationships with clients. The new space will have room for storage, a larger staff work area and an additional conference room.

"Vanick Group is in the business of helping companies get more accomplished with fewer resources," according to company literature.

The company used to be headquartered in the former Comcast Building until Comcast relocated. The new owner and operator, In-Rel, rebranded the building and has been working on increasing its occupancy since buying the property in December.
